

Keith Burnley, CEO

Welcome to the December edition of the NCEE Newsletter. We have lots of news to share this month, including the announcement of the winner of the Times Higher Education Entrepreneurial University of the Year. We also have some news regarding our new International Entrepreneurship Educators Programme cohort which will be starting in January 2015.

First though, I am delighted to announce that Professor Graham Henderson, Vice Chancellor at Teesside University, has been made an Honorary Fellow of NCEE in recognition of his contribution to the Entrepreneurial University Leaders Programme and the significant leadership he has provided in developing the enterprise agenda in the UK.

We hope to see you at some of our forthcoming events which you can read more about below. Season's greetings from NCEE.

NCEE is proud to announce the 2014 Times Higher Education Award winner of
Entrepreneurial University of the Year as Anglia Ruskin University

On Thursday 27th November 2014, Anglia Ruskin University were announced as the winner of the Entrepreneurial University of the Year at the Times Higher Education Awards, sponsored by NCEE. We would like to congratulate Anglia Ruskin University for this incredible achievement and also all of the short-listed universities for their impressive work.

Keith Burnley, Chief Executive of the National Centre for Entrepreneurship in Education, and member of the judging team for the award, said "Anglia Ruskin University has a corporate strategy which is committed to strengthening an entrepreneurial culture that is delivering value for students, partners and stakeholders. Enterprise and entrepreneurship are clearly at the heart of the organisation, influencing the behaviours of staff and students.

The impact of this entrepreneurial approach is seen amongst staff, students and alumni. Courses prepare entrepreneurial graduates as well as graduate entrepreneurs. The Degrees at Work team have delivered customer and demand led work based learning that is highly valued. The post graduate medical centre, the MedTech campus and MedBic reflect a strategic approach to entrepreneurship in the fields of health and social care and a commitment to local and regional partners. The university has influenced local and national policy. The Centre for Enterprise Development and Research has been recognised in an IOEE award for best practice in engaging entrepreneurs and business owners."

Jack Dee (left), Professor Lesley Dobree – Deputy Vice Chancellor of Anglia Ruskin University (centre) and Keith Burnley – CEO of NCEE (right)

NCEE Structure Update

It has been necessary to restructure NCEE due to financial constraints. The main effect of this will be seen in the New Year as we lose the role of Director of Educator Development, currently held by Professor Alison Price.

NCEE remains committed to its work across the educator sector and all inquiries can be directed to Lisa McMullan who will continue to be working on IEEC, NEEA and IEEP for NCEE or to Keith Burnley NCEE CEO. We wish Alison all good wishes for the future.

A New Era for IEEP

The next International Enterprise Educators Programme (IEEP) starts in January and we're looking forward to welcoming colleagues to our 5th IEEP as well as celebrating the achievements of those from our last programme who have recently achieved their IEEP Fellowship and SEDA accreditation.

NCEE has entered into a partnership with Coventry University to deliver and develop IEEP. Coventry will support the delivery of the programme and take the lead on accrediting future programmes at Postgraduate Certificate (equivalent to IEEP Associate) and Postgraduate Diploma (equivalent to the full IEEP award) levels. This exciting new development will allow future programmes to respond to the need for HE accredited Continuing Professional Development for Enterprise Educators. NCEE will continue to offer a range of complementary and new non-accredited programmes in response to the HE and FE sector requirements.

For more information, or to book your place on IEEP 5 (limited places still available) visit <http://ieeponline.com/> or contact Lisa McMullan on lisa.mcmullan@ncee.org.uk or 07500829105.

Webcasts – Enterprise for All & the Entrepreneurial University

Keith Burnley, CEO of the National Centre for Entrepreneurship in Education (NCEE) has recently contributed to a couple of interviews with Greg Wade, Programme Manager at Universities UK.

The first of the webcasts was discussing Lord Young's report "Enterprise for All". You can view this webcast by clicking here.

The second of the webcasts sees Keith discussing the concept of the entrepreneurial university which can be viewed by clicking here.

EULP Update

Our new EULP cohort will be starting the programme in the new year.

The 2015 EULP will commence at the University of Oxford in January. The second module will be held in April at the University of Strathclyde, Glasgow (winner of the 2013 Entrepreneurial University of the Year Award) and the third in July at UUK in London.

There are still limited places available on the programme so if you are interested then please contact Lisa Hunt on 02476 158126 or lisa.hunt@ncee.org.uk

Visit www.eulp.co.uk for more details.

Reminder! - Upcoming Impact Days

Don't forget that we are running four more impact days with School For Startups between January and March 2015.

We are running two Enterprise Educators days on 29th January and 12th March and two Leaders of the Entrepreneurial Institution days on 10th February and 17th March. Full details can be found here.

Partner Event – Educate The North Awards and Conference June 2015

Keith Burnley has accepted an invitation to join the panel of judges for the Educate The North Awards and Conference.

The event will be delivered in association with The Telegraph Media Group, and is a one-day conference and high profile awards event, which will celebrate, recognise and share best practice and excellence in the education sector in the North.

The event will take place at The Hilton Manchester Deansgate Hotel on 3 June 2015 and is being delivered by Carm Productions working in partnership with Prolific North and Don't Panic Event Management, with support from Professor Sir Cary Cooper, Professor Phil Harris and Nik Miller.

For further information please click here.